day he received the news of the fluting of the body.

Young Sheehan disappeared from the lumber boat on Monday night. On Inursday evening while three boys, named Gedney, Brown and Strang, were swimming it the Hudson opposite Coxsackie they noticed a body floating about in the water. The boys immediately notified James Kilne, a boatman, who secured the body and towed it to Hallock's dock. A messenger was sent to Coroner Reed, of Coxsackie.

Before that official arrived the body was examined by a number of bystanders. When it was turned over blood flowed freely from the mouth, an unusual occurrence when a person has met death by drowning. When the Coroner arrived the general impression, was that the man had been murdered. After the Coroner had examined the body he also became convinced that the dead man had met with foul play. There were cuts in the head which bled profusely. Hight across the forehead was a big pulpy bruise which looked as if it had been inflicted with a shovel or a ciub.

Dr. A. W. Van Siyck, of Coxsackie, made an cith.

Dr. A. W. Van Siyck, of Coxsackie, made at examination of the body. When he injected a lancet the head bled very freely. This fact astonished the physician, who also make that the man had come to his death in a vio that the man had come to his dearh in a violent manner. The doctor gave as his opinion that the body had been in the water about five days. There was no fracture of the skull, but the contuston on the forehead was found to be about 2½ inches wide.

In spite of all this suspicion of out play, the lungs of the dead man were not examined. Early the next day the body was hurried to a pauper's grave in filverside Cemetery. Why further examination of the body was not made the authorities do not say beyond this, "The odor was unpleasant."
Two days later there was an inquest, and the Coroner's Jury rendered this verdict;
"We find that the unknown man whose body was found in the Hudson River, opposite Coxsackie, came to his death in a manner unhurried back to their ploughing.
Mr. Sheehan will arrive in Coxsackie this morning. Should the body prove to be that of his son he will immediately request an investigation.

The principals of this romantic episode are Miss Emily Lee, a pretty brunette of a prot nonneed type, and Henry J. Welter, the son of a Grand Army veteran of Keiswell Post, No. 149, of Fiacbush. Miss Lee is the daughter of Charles H. Lee, quartermaster of the when seen, said: "The ract of the matter is Mrs. Stratton was lazy. She never prepared anything for the old man, and I will be able to prove when the examination comes that he supplied an over-abundance of food of his wife. Why, I have just received a statement from a grocer where Stratton has dealt for years, in which it appears that from last october until the time of his arrest his monthly account was $28. Mrs. Stratton had an aversion for cooking. All the focu that came into the house was in cans. Her husband was a good liver, but he could not induce her to prepare anything for him. I do not believe that she was so ill at any time that she could not have gone to the store."

Groceryman Kucks said that since Stratton had been arrested his wife had received on an average each weet about six worth of grocerles. His clerks call at the house each day and receive the orders for simplies. The butcher and the baker also call regularly. From another source it was learned that stratton had written an affectionate letter to his wife asking her not to appear against him and bring his gray hairs in sorrow to the graye. He said he cid not blame her so much as he did meadlesome neighbours. The same informant said that Stratton's past history was being looked into, and that his character will be laid here when the case comes again into court. Ex Assistant Pistric-Attorney Foster I. When her husband, who is eighty-three years old, discovered that his neighbor was a result of the hearing in the application, giving the reding his wife he baricaded the windows so that she could get no more relief from that source. Mr. Stratton is only twenty-six years old; she has been married three years, and she told Mrs. Jadwin that her husband obtained his meals in a restaurant, leaving her to starve.

Something had to be done to save the wondown all fife, to an indignation meeting was held among the neighbors, and as a result, stratton was arrested on a charge of an attempt at homicide.

Judge Haggerty, before whom the case was brought, insisted that Mrs. Stratton should be well provided for by her husband, and as a result her husband gave her carte blane, with the various butchers, bakers and grocers in the neighborhood. All her wants are now supplied, and she is visited daily by

All of the speakers were of clean appearance and attire.

The pre-bing officer and first speaker was T. Ulmann. He praised Gov. Altgeld for his action, which, he asserted, was altegether with the principles of the Jefermonion bemocracy, of which the Governor of lilinois seemed to be the only existing relic.

He accused the press of bubbling over with excitement over the pardon, while the public was unmoved. He advised his hearers to bear in mind that even the ibserty to die depended upon the faculty of cluding the police.

A poem in German of a very heroic type was read by Mr. Baedenkopf.

John Edelmann, the next speaker, attacked the Government, the press and the police hie said the police was the greatest public engine of prostitution that ever existed. He described Gov. Altgeld as an bonest politician. America was not the home of the free and the brave, but the entire government was a big organized swindle.

He attacked Inspector Byrnes and the entire police force, and said that the men in Chicago were convicted for using the right of seil-defense.
